

We don't allow youth alcohol use in our home!

As a parent/responsible adult,

I am concerned about the high rate of underage drinking and its serious consequences. Though merchants are required to check identification of those purchasing alcohol to ensure they are twenty-one, teens in high school and younger report that the number one place to obtain alcohol is from their own parents, siblings, or parents of friends. Therefore, I am proud to join the Coalition for Healthy Communities' "We ✓ for 21, Too" campaign to prevent underage drinking.

I pledge to never allow alcohol parties to take place in my home for anyone under the age of 21. I will also make sure to ask the parents of my children's friends to do the same.
